Scope and Contents of the Materials

This collection contains photographic prints from Hamilton County in the early 1920s, likely created for schools for yearbooks or other class photos. These photos include students from all grades of schools and several communities in the county.

This collection was named for discoverability, but also with future arrangement in mind. As this collection has no provenance, it is likely to be combined with future School Record collections to make accessibility easier. "Rolled" in the collection's name refers to the physical condition of a majority of the photos.

Collection Historical Note

While high school yearbooks are common in this area during this time period, individual photos of younger students do not survive as often. Instead of a class photo in front of a school or in a classroom, these negatives were created, laid side by side, and printed on sheets. The purpose of these photos is unknown.
